

Climate Research in Oxford

UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

This open afternoon will showcase the diversity of climate research in Oxford and give a flavour of the opportunities for research and collaboration across departments. Open to all, including undergraduates thinking about climate research; graduates, post-docs and faculty, to learn about what is going on in other departments; and interested members of the public. This event is organised by the Oxford Climate Research Network (www.climate.ox.ac.uk).

26 February 2013

2.00pm-4.15pm

Sheldonian Theatre,
Broad Street

Book your place:

<https://bookwhen.com/eci1>

Myles Allen (Geography/ECI & Physics): Dosing in Doha: why do we still need climate research?

Tamsin Mather (Earth Sciences): Volcanos - natural drivers of climate change

Helen Johnson (Earth Sciences): Ocean circulation and climate

Don Grainger (Physics): Monitoring the Earth from Space

Antje Weisheimer (Physics): Chaos and predictability in weather and climate

Sebastian Engelstaedter (Geography): Extreme climates: heat and dust in the central Sahara

Rick van der Ploeg (Economics): Is it worth worrying? Climate Change Economics

At 5.00pm there is a lecture by the Rt Hon John Gummer, Lord Deben, Chairman of the UK's independent Committee on Climate Change, entitled 'Even Ostriches Need Third Party Insurance: The case for action on climate change in a polycentric world'. Book at www.eci.ox.ac.uk/news/events/evenostriches.php